

Alberto Gelmi is a PhD candidate in Comparative Literature at The Graduate Center, CUNY. His dissertation focuses on medieval prophecy as a semiotic construct in Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. He teaches Italian language and culture at Fordham and Susquehanna University.