

Mayte Green-Mercado is Assistant Professor of History at Rutgers University-Newark. Her first book, Visions of Deliverance. Moriscos and the Politics of Prophecy in the Early Modern Mediterranean, examined the political culture of Moriscos—Spanish Muslims who were forcibly converted to Catholicism beginning in 1501—through their deployment of prophecies about the End Times. She also edited a volume for the Journal of the Social and Economic History of the Orient titled “Speaking the End Times: Prophecy and Messianism in Early Modern Eurasia,” JESHO– Journal of the Economic and Social History of the Orient 61 (2018): 18-90. Her current book project, Mediterranean Displacements. Morisco Migrations in the Sixteenth Century traces the history of migrations and displacement of Moriscos around the Mediterranean basin, from their forced conversion to Catholicism until their expulsion from the Iberian Peninsula in 1609.
