

Dr. Edward L. Holt is a historian of the pre-modern Mediterranean, centered on medieval Iberia, whose research focuses on cultural, liturgical, and political articulations of leadership through comparative and transregional perspectives. He is the co-editor of The Sword and the Cross: Castile-León in the Era of Fernando III (Brill, 2020). His peer-reviewed articles on medieval Iberian liturgy, kingship, crusade, and geospatial analyses of power have received the Best Early Career Article Prize from ASPHS, as well as the Bernard Hamilton Essay Prize from the SSCLE. He is currently working on a history of leadership and political liturgy in medieval Iberia, which explores how the royal court and ecclesiastical hierarchies of Castile-León articulated conceptions of rulership as well as how various subject groups mediated these claims of legitimacy. His research has been supported by multiple organizations, including the American Philosophical Society, the Madrid Institute for Advanced Study, the Hill Manuscript and Museum Library, and the American Academy of Research Historians of Medieval Spain.
