

My name is Ebtisam Mursi. I am an ABD, finishing up my dissertation from Cornell University. I work on Captivity Literature in the early modern Mediterranean. Using Spanish and Arabic textual sources, I study ex-captives' representation of their time in Christendom and the Maghreb. My research interests also include Digital Humanities, Translation Theory, Modern Arabic Literature, and Travel Literature.