

Otachime keeps the tradition of her ancestors between the New World and the Old World. At present, she is very grateful to be by the magnificent Flatirons in Boulder and is looking forward to learning everything about American culture, history, and arts from you. She has been trained in Literature, Fine Arts (painting and woodblock printing), Art History, and Japanese Religion (Shinto and Buddhism). She is interested in the history of emotions, the history of art, the history of ideas, the history of religions, relationships, archaeology, and music with a special interest in the history of interaction between East and West, and North and South.
