

Zozan Pehlivan is Assistant Professor of History at the University of Minnesota-Twin Cities. She is an environmental historian with a focus on the relationship between environmental stress and the rise of inter-communal violence in the Middle East. Dr. Pehlivan is a recipient of the Harry Frank Guggenheim Distinguished Scholar Award and her article “El Niño and the Nomads” (2020) was awarded the Ömer Lütfi Barkan Article Prize by the Ottoman and Turkish Studies Association. Her innovative interdisciplinary research has been awarded by many institutions, including the Institute of Historical Research, American Society for Environmental History, and the Ottoman and Turkish Studies Association. She is currently a Mellon Fellow at Newberry Library in Chicago and working on her comparative project examining forced resettlement of indigenous people in the Great Plains, the British Punjab, and Ottoman-Kurdistan.

Dr. Pehlivan’s first monograph, The Political Ecology of Violence: Peasants and Pastoralists in the Last Ottoman Century (Cambridge University Press, Studies in Environment and History series) is anticipated to be out in November, 2024.
