

Texts from the Middle: The Mediterranean World (650–1650).

Thomas E. Burman (Notre Dame University)

Brian A. Catlos (University of Colorado Boulder)

Mark D. Meyerson (University of Toronto)

Table of Contents [Draft]

Introduction

Part One: The Helleno-Islamic Mediterranean (650–1050 C.E.)

Chapter 1: “The Legacy of Empire”

- The Battle of Siffin
- Battle of Tours (732CE)
- Legends of Women & the Conquest of al-Andalus
- Toda of Navarre and 'Abd al-Rahman III
- Charlemagne’s Elephant
- Basil Lakapenos

Chapter 2: “Mediterranean Connections”

- Harald Hadrada
- Religious Relations in Fatimid Cairo
- The Calendar of Córdoba
- Jewish Traders’ Letters from the Cairo Geniza
- Ibn Fadlan- At the Frontiers of the Mediterranean World

Chapter 3: “Conversion and the Consolidation of Identities”

- Byzantine Iconoclasm
- Charlemagne and the Catholic Church
- Jews in Early Medieval Europe
- Jewish Communities and Muslim Authorities in the Cairo Geniza
- Christian Arabization in Muslim Lands

Chapter 4: “Peoples of the Book Reading their Books”

- Which is the Bible, Which is the Qur'an
- The Myth of the Septuagint
- Studying in Eleventh-Century Iraq and France
- A Christian and a Muslim Interpret their Scriptures
- Hadiths on Fasting, Charity, and the Hajj
- Plotinus on the One
- Ibn Hazm Critiques the Christian Gospels and Explores the Nature of Love

Part Two: An Age of Conflict and Collaboration (1050–1350 C.E.)

Chapter 5: “Holy and Unholy War”

- The Fall of Yusuf ibn Naghrilla
- The Trial of Philip of Mahdia
- Franks and Muslims in Crusade-era Palestine and Syria
- Byzantium and Latin Europe
- Papacy and Power
- The Almohad Revolution

Chapter 6: “A Connected Sea”

- Conquest and Negotiation
- Looking East
- A Rough Guide to Pilgrimage
- A Pilgrim at Sea
- Collaboration and Credit

Chapter 7: “Mediterranean Societies”

- Morality in the Marketplace
- The Limits of Legitimacy
- Keeping it Clean
- Power and Piety
- The Challenge of Heresy
- Pride and Prejudice

Chapter 8: Reading Each Others’ Books

- Disciplina Clericalis of Petrus Alfonsi
- The Muslim and Christian Buddhas
- Mixed Blood Greek Border Lords
- The Latin-Christian Encounter with the Talmud
- The Muslim Jesus
- The Book of the Covenant by Joseph Kimhi
- Ibn Taymiyya Critiques Christianity-And Others

Chapter 9: A Sea of Technology, Science, and Philosophy

- Hacking the Astrolabe Across the Mediterranean
- Arab Engineering
- The Life of a Scientific Translator
- Learning Medicine, Finding Medicines
- Gregory Palamas on the Dangers of Philosophy
- Esotericism Thrives!

Part Three: The Contest for the Mediterranean (1350–1650 C.E.)

Chapter 10: Imperial Rivalry and Sectarian Strife

- Islamic Discourses of Legitimacy
- Christian Views of the Fall of Constantinople
- Fernando II and Spanish imperial expansion
- Machiavelli's Political Views
- Fighting Sectarian Enemies

Chapter 11: Minorities and Diasporas

- The Spanish Inquisition and the Expulsion of the Jews
- Oppression and Expulsion of the Moriscos
- Ghettos and the Jews of Renaissance Italy
- Christians under Mamluk and Ottoman Rule
- Responses to Expulsion and Exile

Chapter 12: “Slavery and Captivity”

- Slave Soldiers in the Muslim World
- Early Medieval Europe and the Slave Trade
- Slave Life in Late Medieval Mediterranean Europe
- Crusaders, corsairs, and captives
- Perceptions of Black Africans in the Early Modern Mediterranean

Chapter 13: “Mystical Messiahs and Converts, Humanists and Armorers”

- Describing Muslim and Jewish Mystics
- A Morisco Prophecy of Turkish Triumph
- Conversion in Public
- Sixteenth-Century Latin-Christian Views of Islamic Science and Medicine
- Galileo Galilei on Science and the Bible
- Building and Firing the Bombards

Chapter 14: “Family, Gender, and Honor”

- Contracting Marriage
- Women in the Economy
- Women in Power
- Women's Spirituality
- Sexual Transgressions and the Law

Chapter 15: “Mediterranean Economies and Societies in a Widening World”

- Responses to the Plague
- Social Rebellion
- Muslim-Christian Commercial Agreements
- Private and Public Charity
- Climate Change, War, and Discontent