

Sylvia Angelique Alajaji is Professor of Music at Franklin & Marshall College, where she is also an affiliate in the International Studies program. She is the author of Music and the Armenian Diaspora: Searching for Home in Exile, a multi-sited work that examines the construction of diasporic Armenian subjectivity in the years since the Armenian genocide, recently published in Turkish translation. In the spring of 2021, she served as the Dumanian Professor of Armenian Studies at the University of Chicago. Her published work centers on the relationship between music and exilic identity, focusing primarily on Armenian diasporic communities in Lebanon and the United States.
