

Gary D. Farney (Rutgers University-Newark) received his PhD in Latin from Bryn Mawr College in 1999, and has been a Fellow at the American Academy in Rome (1996-1997), the American School for Classical Studies in Athens (1997-1998), and the Research Center for Anatolian Civilizations in Istanbul (2013). He is currently Associate Professor of History and Director of the Division of Global Affairs at Rutgers University (Newark). He is also the Editor of the Journal of Ancient History, under the aegis of De Gruyter Press (<http://www.degruyter.com/view/j/jah>) and Co-Director for the Upper Sabina Tiberina Project, which focuses on habitation and settlement in the Sabina Tiberina from the third century BCE to the third century CE (<http://fieldschool.rutgers.edu>; <https://ustproject.org>). His first book was Ethnic Identity and Aristocratic Competition in Republican Rome (Cambridge U. P., 2007). His current book project is on aristocratic family identity during the Roman Republic and early Empire.