

Ani Honarchian is Assistant Professor of Early Christianity with focus on Eastern Christianity and Armenian Sources. Her current book project, On the Threshold studies social and historical interactions of Armenian and Syriac speaking Christians living in the frontiers and the heartland of Sasanian Iran. Before coming to SLU, she was a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Utah in the Middle East Studies Center and at Princeton's Seeger Center for Hellenic Studies and the Center for the Study of Late Antiquity.