

Courtney Knight is a second year student in the History MA/PhD program at Saint Louis University. She studies the history of medicine and science in Medieval and Early Modern Spain. She is interested in cross-cultural collaboration, the transmission of medical knowledge, the translation of medical texts, and the teaching of medical knowledge in universities.