

Natividad Planas, associate professor at the University of Clermont Auvergne and holder of a Habilitation to Supervise Research, is a specialist in Spain in the modern period. She works on the contacts between Europe and Islam from the Mediterranean laboratory. Her research focuses on frontier societies, mediation, transconfessional diplomacy, and migrations on both sides of the Mediterranean. Her new project focusses on foreigners of servile origin in Southern Europe (XVth-XVIIIth Centuries)