

Rebecca Wartell, PhD is a Teaching Associate Professor at the University of Colorado Boulder in the Program in Jewish Studies. Her research focuses on Sephardic and conversa women of the early modern period, both in Mediterranean and cross-Atlantic colonial contexts. Her current book project draws primarily from Hebrew rabbinic texts and Portuguese Inquisition records that highlight the experiences of Jewish women as refugees and religious converts in the sixteenth century.